Persel Group

Website Strategy & User Flow

PREPARED BY LOGOREVAMP

01 — THE GOAL

Make a sophisticated business immediately understandable.

Persel understands executive hiring from both sides, that model is genuinely strong. The site currently asks a visitor to understand the whole ecosystem before they can tell where they belong in it.

THE GOAL

Less explanation.

More direction.

Every section should tell the visitor where to go next.

02 — THE CURRENT PROBLEM

Two audiences. Six offers. One homepage.

FOR COMPANIES

TalentEngine

Elevate

FOR EXECUTIVES

Fulcrum

ExecuEdge

Climb

FractionalEdge

THE PROBLEM

"This looks impressive... but which one is for me?"

Every offer is valuable. Together on one page they compete for the same attention.

03 — CURRENT USER FLOW

What happens today

Homepage – Executive hiring intelligence – Six different paths – Long explanations – Proof – FAQ – CTA

The visitor has to understand Persel before Persel understands them.

That order is backwards.

04 — THE STRATEGIC OPPORTUNITY

Let the visitor identify themselves first.

Replace “Which Persel service do I need?” with one question the visitor can answer in a second:

What brings you here?

I'M HIRING

I need exceptional executive talent.

08 — THE BIG DIFFERENTIATOR

One perspective. Two sides.

Persel knows what companies want — and what an executive has to do to become the person companies choose.

TRADITIONAL SEARCH FIRM

Understands employers

CAREER COACH

Understands executives

PERSEL GROUP

Understands both

09 — MAKE THIS THE BRAND IDEA

"The work looks different from each side. The insight that drives it is identical."

This idea is already in the brand. The website should be built on top of it.

COMPANY

What makes an exceptional executive?

EXECUTIVE

How do I become the obvious choice?

PERSEL

We understand both sides of that equation.

10 — PROOF

Don't make the visitor take your word for it.

95%
Client Satisfaction

27%
Faster Time to Hire

Bring the results forward, above the explanation. Then keep going — numbers alone don't finish the job.

11 — TURN NUMBERS INTO STORIES

A number states. A story convinces.

INSTEAD OF

27% Faster Time to Hire

THE CHALLENGE

A company needed a critical executive hire.

THE APPROACH

Persel's methodology identified and evaluated the right candidates.

THE RESULT

A 27% faster hiring process.

Statistics create interest. Stories create belief.

12 — SIMPLIFY THE LANGUAGE

Simple headline. Sophisticated explanation.

The brand is sophisticated. The visitor shouldn't have to decode it to find out.

Name it plainly first. Explain the intelligence underneath.

Sophistication belongs in the explanation, not the label.

13 — NEW HOMEPAGE STRUCTURE

The flow, top to bottom

01	Hero	Executive Hiring Works Differently.
02	Choose your path	I'm Hiring / I'm an Executive
03	Your solutions	Only the services relevant to that audience.
04	Why Persel	One perspective. Two sides.
05	Proof	Results, case studies, testimonials.
06	Expertise	People, methodology, experience.
07	Final CTA	Start where you are.

Two buttons. One decision. Everything below the fold follows from it.

One perspective. Two sides.

AND THEN THE STORIES

Challenge → Approach → Result

Two or three real engagements told in this shape do more than any testimonial wall.

The people behind Persel.

Human and concise. The goal isn't to tell visitors everything about the team.

21 — THE CORE CHANGE

We aren't redesigning Persel to make it prettier.

We're redesigning the decision-making journey.

THE VISITOR MOVES FROM

"What is all of this?"

→

TO

"This is exactly what I need."

22 — THE END GOAL

Make the sophistication feel effortless.

Persel has a sophisticated business. The website should do the complicated thinking for the visitor.
